What's going on

December 13, 2002

HAIR-RAISING

These old 'dos were all don'ts

We've all had 'em. Hair styles that were so gruesome that we pray no one will ever unearth photos of them.

"Bad Hair" by James Smith (Bloomsbury USA, $9.95) is a collection of those photos. There are more than 100, each more cringe-worthy than the last. There's no text -- how could you justify these things?

It's in bookstores now.

FANTASY FOOTBALL

Vote for your champion

Today's your last chance to vote in the Tom Bowl fan poll.

Never heard of the it? No wonder. It brags of being the only major college bowl game not sanctioned by the NCAA. In fact, it exists only as a Web site -- www.tombowl.com. Named one of the Michigan's best Web sites for 2002 by the Free Press, the Tom Bowl takes its name from founder Thomas Cantrell, who invites the nation's best football teams to compete in his fantasy bowl every year.

For what it's worth, the poll -- which closes at 9 p.m. today -- was topped by Michigan State University three of the past four years.

'JEOPARDY' BIDS

Podiums for $2,000

Answer: Pieces of the set from what famed television show are being auctioned on eBay?

Question: What is "Jeopardy?"

Correct. But you have to get cracking -- the online auction ends Monday evening.

The auction was made possible when, last month, the show introduced a chic new set filled with panels of tile and stone and what looks like burlwood. So now the old contestant podiums are up for grabs, along with various wood and glass panels and -- get this -- the giant "Jeopardy wall" that provided a backdrop for host Alex Trebek.

The proceeds from the auction will benefit World
